Will we achieve our Independence?

It is true, that recently we have suffered some reverses, but are we to give up on account of this? Could we reasonably be expected to carry on such a war as the present, not against such a formidable foe as ours without some reversal of defeat to our arms? Most certainly we could not.

How to Make Syrup from Chinese Sugar Cane.

W. Touey, Esq., of Eufaula, Alabama, communicates the following interesting and instructive article to the Southern Cultivator. By the bye, every farmer should take that Journal and study well its contents.

THE MANUFACTURE OF SORGHUM OR COFFEEDATE SYRUP.

My directions are for farmers and planters who have not, cannot and would not get the elaborate apparatus of a sugarhouse; but there are essential fixtures, &c., which must be had, to wit: a mill, boilers, a boiling dipper of wood of five gallon capacity, with a long handle, a common dipper, and perforated ladles or skimmers.

THE BOILERS.

They should be proportioned in size and number to the size of the crop; say one for 20 acres, two or three for 50 acres, and five or six for 100 acres, more or less.

THE GATHERING OF THE CANES.

Pull the fodder as you do corn fodder, each day as you grind your cane. Cut the stalks close to the ground with sharp hoes, and haul them to the mill with the seed on, with a small crop, but not seed off in the field if a large one, dry the panicles in the sun one day and house.

THE JUICE.

Put the juice in the largest boiler, nearly filling it, and stir it gently with a fire under it, and put the juice to simmering—not boiling—and keep it so for about thirty minutes, until clarified. This is to be effected by administering some alkali in solution.

THE PROCESS.

The best alkali for this purpose is the super carbonate of soda. Put one heaping teaspoonful in a pint of water, dissolve it, and pour it into the boiler of simmering juice, stir it up, and a violent effervescence takes place, rising four inches high, and finally settling in a thick greenish scum all over the surface of the juice.

Pea Ridge and its Poet.

Mr. Edson: You doubtless know that there is a section of Union District, S. C., known as the Pea Ridge country. And perhaps some of your readers have a much curiosity to know the origin of this somewhat anomalous name, as did your correspondent.

Our Captain has gone to town.

He did not go to stay, He did not go to stay, And ten of his brave men Have run away.

Our Colonel is very kind.

And thinks that he is right, And if a man on crutches stand, He sends him off to fight.

Our beef is very blue.

And meat is very round, And we have no where to lay our head, But to lay it on the ground.

We have nothing here to do.

But sometimes sweep the yard, And every other day We have to go to guard.

The devil came to view the camp.

He did not make much stay, He saw them hopping on their sticks, He broke and ran away.

The rich man are lucky still.

And all can go at large, For if they pay five hundred dollars, They all run get a discharge.

Every loyal man should remember that this war is not a war for conquest, nor a war for the gratification of ambitious men, but a war merely for our just rights, a war upon which hangs the destiny of every inhabitant of the Southern States.

Something all should bear in mind.

The Tennessee Campaign.

A sketch of the theatre of the military operations in Tennessee may be satisfactory to some of our readers, says the Richmond Sentinel, of the 10th. And first, as to the railroads and their connections:

From Lynchburg to Chattanooga.

The line is almost straight, and the direction South-west. From Lynchburg, a distance of 224 miles, to Bristol, for the line between Virginia and Tennessee, the road is known as the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad. From Bristol to Knoxville, in Tennessee, a distance of 130 miles, it is called the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad.

From Chattanooga to Dalton.

This portion of the road is 110 miles long. Twenty-seven miles this side of Dalton is a point on the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad called Cleveland. Cleveland is in Tennessee. From it a railroad runs nearly West, twenty-seven miles to Chattanooga.

From Dalton to Atlanta.

Atlanta is 171 miles by railroad from Dalton. The line is in Georgia. From Dalton to Atlanta, the road is in Georgia. From Dalton to Atlanta, the road is in Georgia.

From Dalton to Savannah.

The scene of operations lies on the confines and near the corners of at least four States, viz: the South-east boundary of Tennessee, the North-west corner of North Carolina, the North-east corner of Georgia, and the North-east corner of Alabama.

From Dalton to Knoxville.

Both Knoxville and Chattanooga were evacuated at his approach, and he has taken them without a struggle.

From Raleigh North Carolina.

Some of the soldiers of the 3rd Brigade, apparently led by officers, mobbed the Standard newspaper office last night, destroying the furniture and throwing the type into the street. They destroyed a lot of State printing, &c. Governor Vance reached the spot after the work of destruction was nearly over. He addressed the crowd begging them to desist, and rebuked the act telling them that no such example had been set in Lincoln's dominions.

From Dalton to Dalton.

A Turkish Seraglio was recently burned to the ground. An exciting scene occurred during the conflagration among three hundred women who inhabited it.
